1. Introduction

TaskBuddy is a family task management app for households with children aged 10 to 16. It turns everyday chores into a game - points, XP, levels, streaks, badges and rewards - while giving parents complete visibility and control over what their children see and earn.

1.1 How it works

Parents create tasks and assign them to their children. A child completes the task in real life, submits it (with a photo if the task requires one), and a parent approves or returns it. On approval the child receives XP and Points automatically. The cycle repeats daily, building habits and streaks over time.

1.2 The two currencies

TaskBuddy keeps progression and spending separate, so a child who saves for a big reward never has to choose between levelling up and buying something:

- XP (Experience Points) - earned on approval, fills the level bar, and can never be spent.
- Points - also earned on approval, and spent in the reward shop. Level-up bonuses, game rewards and teamwork bonuses are all added here.

Every points movement is written to a ledger. If a balance ever looks wrong, the Points Ledger report (R-02) shows exactly where each point came from and went.

1.3 Getting to the app

TaskBuddy runs in any modern browser on phones, tablets and computers. It is also an installable app: on a phone, open it in your browser and choose "Add to Home Screen" to get an icon, a full-screen view and a badge on the icon when something needs your attention.

Children can start and complete tasks while offline. Those actions queue on the device and send automatically once the connection returns - nothing is lost on a patchy signal.

1.4 Who does what

Role	What they can do
Parent	Create tasks and rewards, approve work, manage children, view reports and settings
Co-parent	The same as a parent. Invited by email; both parents share equal access
Child	Complete tasks, play games, earn and spend points, collect badges

2. Parent Guide

As a parent you control everything your family sees: the tasks, the rewards, the settings, and when your children are allowed to be interrupted by notifications.

2.1 Creating your family account

- Choose "Get started" on the home page and enter your name, email, password and family name.
- A memorable family code is generated for you (for example MEGA-VIPER-8481). Your children use it to log in. You can view or regenerate it any time in Settings.
- Verify your email address using the link we send you.
- A short setup guide then walks you through adding a child, creating your first task and approving it, so you see the whole cycle before you rely on it.

Parent sessions end when you close the browser, for security. Children's sessions persist so they are not locked out of their own chores.

2.2 Parental consent (required before adding a child)

Because TaskBuddy holds data about children, a verified parental consent record is required before you can add one. Go to Settings or follow the prompt, confirm your consent, and click the link in the email we send. Adding a child is blocked until this is complete.

This applies to every family, including existing ones. It is a one-off step per family and exists so we can show, not just claim, that a parent agreed.

2.3 The parent dashboard

- Approvals waiting for you, shown first - a child cannot progress until you act.
- A card per child: level, XP bar, points balance, current streak, and a traffic light showing whether they are on track, slipping, or stalled.
- Their current goal, if they are saving towards a reward, and how close they are.
- How many rewards each child has added to their wishlist.
- Recent comments on tasks, so a question does not sit unanswered.
- The notification bell, with an unread count.
- A link to download this manual.

2.4 Managing children

- Add a child from Children > Add child: name, date of birth and a 4-digit PIN. No email needed.
- Open a child to edit their details, reset their PIN, set quiet hours, or download a monthly report card.
- Removing a child archives them. Their task history and points record are preserved.

2.5 Creating tasks

- Tasks > Create task. Give it a title, description and points value; the difficulty is set from the points automatically.
- Choose Primary (must-do) or Secondary (bonus). Secondary tasks unlock for a child only once their primary tasks for the day are done.

- Optionally set a start time, an estimated duration and a due date.
- Assign it to one or more children.

Starting from a template

If you would rather not start from a blank form, choose "Browse ideas" to pick from a library of ready-made chores grouped into packs by age and room. Picking one fills the form; you can change anything before saving. Applying a whole pack adds every task in it to your library.

Team-up tasks

Tick "Team-up task" and assign two or more children to make one job a shared effort. Each child still earns the full points for the task - the teamwork bonus is paid on top, to everyone, once every member has been approved. Nobody earns less for co-operating, and nobody is rewarded for going last.

Limits and clashes

- Each child can hold a maximum of 3 active assignments, and only 1 primary at a time. This is a deliberate focus guard, not a technical limit.
- If a new task overlaps something already scheduled for that child, you are shown a timeline of the clash and can adjust or proceed anyway.
- Tasks can repeat daily, weekly, on weekdays or at weekends. New instances are generated automatically each night.

2.6 Approving work

When a child submits a task you receive a push notification straight away, and an email. Open the approval screen from either, or from the dashboard.

- Review the photo evidence if the task required it.
- Approve - the child receives their XP and Points immediately, and any level-up, badge, streak or team bonus is applied at the same moment.
- Or return it with written feedback. The child sees your note and can fix it and resubmit.

If a co-parent has already dealt with a submission, the screen tells you who handled it rather than showing an error.

2.7 Rewards

- Rewards > Create reward, or "Browse ideas" for ready-made suggestions ordered by what families actually redeem - with your own family's history counting most.
- Set the points cost, how many times each child may claim it, and an optional household-wide cap and expiry date.
- A collaborative reward can be funded by several children pooling points towards one goal.
- When a child redeems something, you get a notification. Mark it fulfilled once you have actually delivered it.

Who receives a collaborative reward

You choose the rule when you create it: Shared (the family - right for a film night or a day out) or Parent's choice (you nominate one child when it is funded, for something only one person can have). Contributions are never refunded silently; the reward appears in your redemption reports either way.

2.8 The family calendar

Calendar shows the week with your children as columns and days as rows, so you can see who has what on. A warning marks two tasks that overlap for the same child. It is read-only for now - change a task by opening it.

2.9 Insights

Insights answers the questions a table of numbers cannot: which days of the week actually work for your family, which tasks are quietly never completed, and whether the points you award have drifted out of step with what your rewards cost.

2.10 Reports

Reports gives you eleven family-scoped reports. Each can be filtered by child and date range, and exported to CSV or PDF.

Report	What it shows
R-01 Task Completion	Completion and approval rates, per child and over time
R-02 Points Ledger	Every point earned and spent, with a running balance
R-03 Reward Redemptions	What was claimed, by whom, and whether it was fulfilled
R-04 Engagement & Streak	Streak lengths, at-risk days, daily activity heatmap
R-05 Achievements	Which badges each child has unlocked, and when
R-06 Family Leaderboard	Ranked snapshot by points (weekly / monthly / all-time)
R-07 Expiry & Overdue	Tasks approaching or past their due date
R-11 Task Execution Time	Estimated versus actual time, and unusual completions
R-12 Games	Plays, pass rates and points per game, and each child against the daily cap
R-13 Webhook Deliveries	Whether your integrations are working, and any auto-disabled

Monthly report card

From a child's page you can download a one-page PDF for any month: their streaks, badges, growth against the previous month and a note from you. It is designed to be shared with a co-parent or a grandparent.

2.11 Notifications and quiet hours

Settings > Notifications controls which emails you receive. Separately, each child has quiet hours: an overnight window and an optional schooltime window on chosen weekdays, during which their device will not buzz.

Quiet hours are read in your family time zone, so set that first in Settings. Notifications still arrive in the app during a quiet window - they simply do not interrupt. Nothing is delivered late in a burst afterwards.

TaskBuddy also limits itself. Beyond one lifecycle email a day and three a week, further non-essential emails are held back. Account emails - verification, password reset, consent, invitations, security notices - are never held back, and neither is your weekly summary.

2.12 The weekly summary

Every Monday morning you receive one email covering the week just gone: what each child finished, points earned and spent, anything waiting on you, and rewards about to expire. It ends with a single suggested next step rather than a list of things to feel behind on.

2.13 Settings

- Family code - view or regenerate the code your children log in with.
- Family time zone - used for quiet hours and schooltime. Set this before you use them.
- Streak grace period - extra hours past midnight before a streak is considered broken.
- Leaderboard - turn sibling rankings on or off for the whole family.
- Daily game points cap - the most a child can earn from games in one day.
- Two-factor authentication - add a one-time code from an authenticator app to your sign-in.
- Webhooks - send TaskBuddy events to another service such as n8n, Zapier or your own endpoint.
- Invite another family - share your referral link; you earn a badge, never points.

2.14 Inviting a co-parent

- Settings > Family members > Invite co-parent, and enter their email.
- They receive a secure link valid for 7 days.
- Once they accept they have equal access: either of you can create, approve and manage.
- Only the primary account holder can remove a co-parent.

3. Child Guide

TaskBuddy is your mission hub. Finish tasks, earn XP to level up, collect points to spend on rewards, keep a daily streak going and unlock badges along the way.

3.1 Logging in

- Open TaskBuddy and choose "Child login".
- Enter your family code (ask a parent - they can find it in Settings) and tap Continue.
- Enter your username and your 4-digit PIN.

Your session stays active, so you will not have to log in again every time.

3.2 Your home screen

- Your level badge, XP bar and points balance.
- Your streak - how many days in a row you have finished at least one task.
- Today's tasks, and today's daily challenge if there is one.
- Your goal: the reward you are saving for and how close you are.
- Recent badges you have unlocked.

3.3 Doing a task

- Tap a task to open it, and read what is being asked.
- Tap Start when you begin, so the time you spend is recorded.
- Do the task in real life.
- Tap Mark as complete, and add a photo if the task asks for one.
- Submit. It moves to "Waiting for approval" until a parent reviews it.

Status	What it means
Pending	Assigned to you and waiting to be done
In progress	You have started it
Submitted	Waiting for a parent to approve
Approved	Done - your XP and Points have been added
Returned	A parent sent it back with feedback. Read it, fix it, resubmit
Overdue	The due date passed before it was completed

Primary and bonus tasks

Primary tasks are the ones that must be done. Bonus tasks unlock once your primary tasks for the day are finished, and you can claim them yourself from the list of available tasks.

Team-up tasks

Some tasks are shared with a brother or sister. Your card shows who is on your team and who still has to finish. You each get the full points for your own work, and everyone gets the teamwork bonus once all of you have been approved.

Asking a question

Every task has a comment thread. If you are not sure what is being asked, leave a comment and a parent will see it.

If you lose signal, you can still start and complete tasks. They are saved on your device and sent automatically when you are back online.

3.4 XP, levels and streaks

- Every approved task gives you XP based on how hard it was.
- When the XP bar fills you level up, get a new badge and a bonus of points.
- Your streak counts days in a row with at least one task finished.
- Reach 7, 14, 30, 60 or 100 days and you get a celebration.
- Keep a long streak going and you earn a streak freeze - it covers one missed day automatically, so one bad day does not undo weeks of work.

XP can never be spent, and nothing you have earned is ever taken away. Points are the ones you spend.

3.5 Rewards

- Rewards shows what your parents have put up, and what each one costs.
- Rewards you can afford are highlighted; the others show how many more points you need.
- Tap the heart on a reward to add it to your wishlist, so your parents know what you actually want.
- Set one as your goal and your progress towards it appears on your home screen.
- Tap Redeem to claim one. Your points are deducted and a parent is told to deliver it.

Some rewards are shared: you and your brothers or sisters can each put points in until it is paid for. A reward may also show "Sold out" if the family limit has been reached, or "Expired" if its date has passed.

3.6 Games

Games gives you a quick quiz to earn extra points. The questions change every day, so coming back tomorrow gives you a fresh set.

- Pick an answer and you are told straight away whether it was right, and which answer was correct if it was not.
- You cannot change an answer once it is locked in - so take your time.
- Finish the quiz to collect your points.
- There is a daily limit on points from games, set by your parents. Once you reach it you can still play, but you will not earn more that day.

3.7 Badges, ranking and your week

- Badges unlock automatically when you hit a milestone, with a pop-up when it happens.
- Rank shows how you and your brothers and sisters compare - your parents can turn this off, and it is meant as friendly motivation, not pressure.
- My Week is a set of cards summarising the week you have just had: what you finished, your best day, your streak, new badges and games played. Look for it at the weekend.

4. Troubleshooting

4.1 Parents

Problem	What to do
I forgot my password	Use "Forgot password" on the login page
I cannot add a child	Parental consent must be confirmed first - check your email for the consent link
My child cannot log in	Check the family code in Settings, and their username and PIN under Children
I regenerated the family code	Share the new one. Old codes stop working immediately
A task has no photo	The child submitted without one. Return the task and ask them to resubmit
An email never arrived	Check spam, then Settings > Notifications. Non-essential emails are also capped at one a day
My child got no notification	Check their quiet hours and your family time zone - the alert is still in the app
The team bonus was not paid	It pays only when every member has been approved, not just submitted
Points look wrong	Open R-02 Points Ledger - every movement is listed with a running balance

4.2 Children

Problem	What to do
I cannot see bonus tasks	Finish your primary tasks for today first
My task came back	Open it, read the feedback, fix it and resubmit
I lost my streak	A streak freeze covers one missed day if you have earned one. Your longest streak is always kept
A reward says "Sold out"	The family limit was reached. Ask a parent if it can be raised
My points did not go up	Points arrive when a parent approves. Give it a moment, then refresh
The game gave me no points	You may have reached the daily games limit. It resets tomorrow
I answered by accident	Answers lock once chosen. The next question is a fresh start
My tasks will not submit	If you are offline they are saved and sent automatically when you reconnect
